

how to get there.

The public transport system in Berlin is easy and safe. The trains and buses run until late at night, fares and special offers can be found on www.bvg.de. For all rides within the city zone (airport Schönefeld = zone C) tickets for zone AB are required. The tickets are valid for all buses, railway, underground and tram trains – you can even use the regional express from the airport Schönefeld. It is permitted to change means of transport during your ride. A single ride within zone AB costs 2.30 Euros, a day pass is available for 6.30 Euros. If you take three or more rides per day, a day pass is the easier and cheaper option. Make sure to stamp your ticket before you get on!
